

Panchak 2025 Dates and Times.

(The Inauspicious Period To Pass On In)

In Hinduism death is not treated as the end of life rather it is treated as a moment when the 'Atma' or 'soul' after leaving the present body will start its journey either for reincarnation in some new form or for 'Moksha' (final emancipation).

Panchak dates are based upon astrological calculations so when a person passes on the first thing that you should check is what time the deceased passed on. Panchak is a very inauspicious time for a person to die in. Panchak is a combination of 5 Nakshatras (asterisms/stars) viz. (Dhanishta, Shatabhisha, Poorva Bhaadrapada, Uttara Bhaadrapada and Revati). The Garuda Purana ll. 4-180 states "Cremations are harmless in this period if the Vedic injunctions are strictly observed".

DO NOTE: All times indicated above, are associated with the start or end of a particular day are in 24-hour format.

For example on 3rd January 2025 @ 07h17, panchak commences and ends on 7th January 2025 @ 14h20. If a person dies within this time then the pundit/priest has to perform a Panchak Shanti puja which takes like a few minutes to perform in the antechamber of the crematorium. Please, please make sure that the priest performs this prayer. I am not going to scare you but if this prayer is not performed then many lives (generally) 5 lives will be lost within the family within that one year. Many Hindu's take Panchak lightly and when problems arise then the family is put through so much of hardship when it could have been avoided. If the deceased died on Panchak then on the funeral day please INSIST on the Panchak Shanti puja if the priest doesn't want to perform it. You rather delay the funeral than having problems later on. Those that know me well know I don't like to scare people but in these cases I am dead (no pun intended) serious. Don't mess with the dead.

With regards to Panchak there are specific instructions given in our scriptures esp. the Garuda Purana (Preta Khand Chapter 10) that are to be performed upon the dead body just before cremation. Five Putale's (forms) made from Kusha grass are to be placed, accompanied by Mantras chanted by the presiding Pundit, the first on the head, the second and third one on each side of the stomach, the fourth on the navel and the fifth and last one between the feet of the deceased. Then the Claimant offers 5 offerings of ghee into the fire for the 5 Nakshatras to appease them.

WHAT IF THE PANCHAK SHANTI PUJA WAS NOT PERFORMED ON THE FUNERAL DAY?

Because it is forbidden to perform any puja for the 10 days - counting from the day of funeral, the Panchak Shanti should be performed by a qualified Pandit on the 11th, 12th or 13th day. If performed on the 13th day then its performed before the Sapindi Puja.
